ASSIGNMENT BY DRY GOODS FIRM

Julius Sytle's Sons File Deed Showing Inability to Meet Indebtedness.

Samuel Sytle and Julia Sytle, his wife, Sydney Sytle and Estelle Sytle, his wife, filed yesterday in the Chancery Court a deed of assignment for the Broad Street dry goods store, operated under the firm name of Julius Sytle's Sons. The liabilities are named at $15,000, and the whole business is placed in the hands of S. E. Schwartz to wind up as may appear to be best, either at public or private sale.

The first clause of the deed conveys to S. E. Schwartz as trustee the Sytle family residence, 201 West Grace Street, and all interest of the two Sytles in the business conducted as Julius Sytle's Sons, at 201 East Broad Street, including merchandise on hand, fixtures and unexpired lease, outstanding bills and obligations, the right to take possession of the store and fixtures, accounts and assets of all kinds, and convert them into cash either by public auction or private sale.

To Wind Up Business.

After paying counsel fees and expenses of sale, the proceeds are to be divided as follows:

Rent of storehouse; for purchasing at a discount certain outstanding claims and notes; deposit in bank, to credit of Samuel Sytle, Lee Sytle and Sydney Sytle as trustees, $2,000; to hold in trust for Benjamin Sytle, under the terms of the will of the late Julius Sytle; then to pay pro rata, if not sufficient balance to pay in full, certain listed claims as follows: Julius Straus & Son, $500; J. A. Cohen, $2,000; Estelle F. Einstein, $2,500; Mrs. H. Isom, $2,200; Dr. Markham, $246.73; and Mrs. Markham, $138.86.

After this all unsecured claims are to be pro rata. If there is not sufficient to pay in full, should there be any balance it is to be paid over to the Sytles in proportion to their interest in the business.

OPEN NEW EXCHANGE

After Sunday Those Who Telephone Must Say "Madison" or "Monroe."

New telephone directories are now being distributed to all subscribers for use on and after July 4, when the two exchanges, Madison and Monroe, will be inaugurated by the Southern Bell Telephone Company. After that date, when calling a number, it will be necessary to tell central in which of the two exchanges the number is located.

The new directory contains all changes and corrections which have been made since the last issue, showing the exchange name before each number. The company is anxious to impress on each subscriber the importance of giving the name of the exchange prefix in calling numbers after Sunday.

Manager Tanner announces that the new regime will be put into effect early Sunday morning. Directions for the use of the new exchanges are contained in each directory, and it is expected that subscribers will speedily fall into the use of the new method and that very little confusion will follow.

The receipts from the money order department increased nearly $100,000. There are about 1,000 rural carriers employed from this post-office, and their aggregate salary is in the neighborhood of $100,000.

FINALLY AGREE ON NEW INCINERATOR

Committee Recommends Award to Minneapolis Company for Sum of $39,950.

After hearing a unanimous report from a subcommittee last night, the Council Committee on Street Cleaning voted to recommend to the Council the award of a contract to the Decarie Incinerator Company of Minneapolis, Minn., for erecting a new incinerator and garbage-destroying plant on the site of the old Valley School in Richmond, at the contract price of $39,950, less than 1-2 of 1 per cent, on payment. The committee made several modifications in the offer of the Decarie Company, all of which were accepted by W. C. McKee, an authorized representative of the company, who was present. These modifications have to do with the building and its approach rather than with the crematory machinery, on which the plans of the Decarie Company were accepted.

Dr. Reade presented the report for the subcommittee and told of the tour of inspection, when a number of plants had been visited. The committee, he said, had considered only two systems, the brick-lined and the water-jacketed. The past experience of a brick-lined incinerator, he said, was not satisfactory. The superintendent, Cohn, produced figures to show that the Richmond plant has cost in fuel consumption and repairs. The committee recommended the Decarie system of water-jacketed incinerator, such as was recently installed by the Board of Control, of Norfolk, and which the committee saw in satisfactory working order.

The report says that this plant, while not so cheap as some others offered, showed from actual use a lower cost for repairs, lower fuel consumption, was more sanitary in operation, and required less manual labor and no expenditure of other refuse, thus reducing the report consists of Messrs. Hobson, Umlauf, Bennett, Ratcliffe and Reade. The proposed plant will have a capacity of fifty tons a day, and will have concrete wagon approach, so that cars may enter the house and empty into the drying bins. After the drying process, much of the garbage becomes fuel itself, and is used in the crematory. The subcommittee will have a ton for both fuel and labor. The superintendent was instructed to advertise for sale the old Valley School building, which has been condemned, to be removed within thirty days.

Among the prominent out-of-town Virginians in the city yesterday were Congressman Hal D. Flood, of Appomattox; former State Senator Thomas N. Williams, of Mechanicsville; and Major John T. Cowan, of Montgomery.

HIGH TEMPERATURE BEST BET FOR JULY; JUNE A BAD ACTOR

Director Evans Studies Record Over Tall Glass of Limeade and Offers Some Comfort to Those Who Refuse to Be Comforted as They Swelter.

Having sent down from the top floor of the Mutual Building for a limeade with plenty of ice in it, Director Evans, of the Weather Bureau, remarked yesterday that conditions weren't so bad after all; that it might be better, and that it was hotter in some places. He had just told a reporter that a temperature of 91 at 3 P. M. wasn't so bad, and that he was looking for the people would be kicking about the cold.

Somewhat the people blame the government sharps for the weather dished out here, there and yonder. Chief Moore came in for a fierce roast for that snowstorm and blizzard in Washington on Inauguration Day, just as if he had brought the elements together to provide the worst thing in the shop. He did miss it somewhat with his prediction, but that is an old story and one that relates to cold, not hot.

Mr. Evans had slipped his limeade, he brought down a whole lot of records and produced the June dope, which showed that in some respects June was a bad actor. Still, it had no effect on the number of early summer weddings. June being popular because May is regarded as a no-don't. The warmest day during the past month was Friday last, when the temperature climbed to 95, and would have climbed some more except for the fact that a little breeze came along and scotched it. The 95 was a far cry from 57, which was all the high the mercury got on June 13. There were fourteen clear days; there was a total precipitation of 4.59; and there was an average breeze of seven miles an hour, as the advertising writer would say. There is much in the record about maximum and minimum temperatures, excess, deficiency, mean, normal, and the like, all of which has no particular bearing on the fact that June had steam and that July may try to beat it.

There were fourteen days on which thunderstorms frightened old maid and forced them to jump between feather beds for safety, and when you figure fourteen thunderstorm days and fifteen days of sunshine there isn't much left for miscellaneous phenomena, such as hail, sleet, fog or frost. The weather sharp agreed that it is a great deal easier to tell what happened during the month just closed than what will happen between now and August. The one best bet, however, is high temperature, then, as your second choice, take a little sunshine out on the limb, rain may partly cloudy. But high temperature, played three ways, is a cinch.

The board of directors of the Memorial Hospital, at a meeting held last night, confirmed the nomination of the visiting staff of physicians and surgeons, and appointed Dr. Lewis C. Boshier, chief. The following names were presented and added to the visiting staff: Dr. Edward P. McGavock, dermatology; Dr. St. George Grinnam, pediatrics; and Dr. R. H. Wright, ophthalmology. Juniors—Dr. C. W. Terrell, general surgery; and Dr. E. M. Roseboro, E. W. Gee and B. L. Laifalfer, diseases of children.

Dr. A. C. Gresham, who will practice in this city, comes from New York. He is a graduate of the University of Virginia, and has recently been appointed to the chair of dermatology at the Medical College of Virginia.

It would mean a harvest of wealth from the Tennessee side, the state-wide prohibition law passed by the Legislature at a meeting held just before the election. Bristol would have a right to ship liquor into other States, which would mean that its saloonkeepers would probably become wealthy within a short while. The cities of Bristol, Va., and Bristol, Tenn., are divided only by a narrow street, citizens on the other side having to walk but a few steps in order to get into Virginia.

Great Interest Manifested.

From all that can be gathered here it is believed that there is intense interest in the fight. It was said yesterday that many prominent liquor men, who have recently lost out in dry communities, are on the ground doing all in their power to assist the wet forces in their efforts to carry the city for license.

In this view of the case it appears that there will be many applicants for license before Judge [Kelley] should the voters determine to reverse their judgment of a little over two years ago.

The experiment of having one portion of this twin city wet and the other dry has been tried, the result having been the making of small fortunes by those on the money side of the business. Bristol Va. went dry about six months ahead of Bristol, Tenn. There is a prominent saloon owner in this city now who was in business on the Virginia side. When the law forced him to shut his doors he went over the State line, rented a place, and ran until the bars were voted out on the Tennessee side, which was about six months later. It is said that this man, who now has a prosperous business in Richmond, cashed in about $35,000 net as a result of the changed conditions, having had a fine trade on both sides of the line. The Bristol fight is being watched with great interest by the anti-saloon forces, as well as those who wish to see the open saloon restored.

Marriage Licenses.

Marriage licenses were issued yesterday to George Luther Wilcox and Katie Oquidua Grine, and to Henry C. Herndon and Marie E. Franklin.

It was a strange coincidence that each one of the four people was twenty-three years of age.

BRISTOL CONTEST RATHER UNIQUE

Saloons May Open on One Side of Street if Town Votes Wet.

Never before, perhaps, in the history of the prohibition movement has there arisen a more unique situation than that which surrounds the wet and dry election to be held in Bristol, Va., on Thursday.

In order that the public may get a fair understanding of conditions, it is necessary to go back for a few years and bring to light some recent history. More than two years ago Bristol, Va., went dry, as the result of an election petitioned for by the temperance people. Meanwhile, the Legislature passed a bill establishing a dispensary for the sale of liquor in the town of Abingdon, fifteen miles east of Bristol. The Abingdon dispensary began to do a phenomenal business as soon as liquor was voted out in Bristol, the citizens of the latter place suddenly becoming aroused to the fact that Abingdon was growing wealthy largely at the expense of Bristol, while the drink habit was fast becoming a thing of the past in no wise decreased in the border city as a result of the latter's having gone dry. Then came a fight to abolish the dispensary by a vote of the people, but the vote won, and the dispensary is still in full blast.

Determined to Fight Again.

Shortly after the time expired in which another election could be called under the law, citizens of Bristol petitioned the court for the right to fight the battle over again, with the result that a strenuous campaign is on, and will end with the battle of the ballots on Thursday.

The wetters are claiming that they will carry the city by a big majority this time; that conservative citizens who formerly voted the dry ticket have come over to them, and that this alleged change has come about mainly by reason of the fact that the experience of the past two years has convinced a large number of the erstwhile dry people that with a dispensary at Abingdon, Bristol would be better off from every viewpoint should the open saloon be restored. It is stated unofficially that the majority of the Norfolk and Western Railway will show that during the past twelve months this road sold approximately 135,000 round trip tickets from Bristol to Abingdon. Under the laws of the State, a dispensary has not the right to ship liquor to its customers, but it is said that train loads of packages to Abingdon daily from Bristol, returning with satchels, dress suit cases and sometimes small trunks filled with intoxicants.

Means Much to Bristol.

Should the wet side win the fight in Bristol it is estimated that it will mean an additional revenue of about $100,000 per year to the city.

But there is another feature of the situation, which, in the event of a wet victory, will make Bristol a most important factor in the money of the Southern States. If the wet win Bristol, Va., will be the only city in that entire stretch of southwestern country, from Cumberland Gap to the Louisiana State line, where liquor will be sold under license. This change will embrace the State of Tennessee, North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Arkansas.

It would mean a harvest of wealth from the Tennessee side, the state-wide prohibition law passed by the Legislature at a meeting held just before the election. Bristol would have a right to ship liquor into other States, which would mean that its saloonkeepers would probably become wealthy within a short while. The cities of Bristol, Va., and Bristol, Tenn., are divided only by a narrow street, citizens on the other side having to walk but a few steps in order to get into Virginia.
